

Visit to the "Friendly Smiling" Yoshizawa

We had already met at the exhibitions, it was noticeable that this couple always served their customers with friendly smiles. So Gunther and I nicknamed them the "friendly smiling ones". They were always courteous and took care of us despite the difficulties of languages. Since we were also visiting this company, we were curious to see what was in store for us. The surprise was big, huge foil houses full of Hepatica, one wonders, where do they leave all these quantities of plants? Here, too, we were allowed to stick our "nose" in everywhere. The sheer variety of varieties and the numbers of pieces overwhelmed one. We enjoyed this luxury and went way by way and looked at everything intensively. Meanwhile, "Boss Ishikawa" surveyed the stocks and also found one thing and another about remarkable Hepatica. It is important to know that it is not the grower who gives the names of the varieties, but the finder. So, Ishikawa finds something extraordinary in a hepatica grower so he has the right of naming the variety. Unusual for us, but that's how it's done in Japan.

Translated with www.DeepL.com/Translator (free version)

Links Yoshizawa, Rechts Ishikawa

Alle sind am Begutachten im Folienhaus

ein Geschenk von Yoshizawa

Die ideale Blütenform

Haustempel in der Gärtnerei

